Hats Off

Our "Hats Off" theme for thanking our many supporters is a figurative tip of the hat in appreciation for your support. In an era when hats have almost passed from the scene (replaced in part by the ubiquitous baseball cap!), there is a risk that this metaphor has lost its meaning. I hope that even those too young to remember a cultural pattern of hat wearing will recognize the term as one of respect and appreciation. We have good reason to tip our hats to our friends. We are celebrating yet another outstanding year in fund raising. The successful year made it possible for us to cover much of the cost of the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness. It also permitted us to continue our tradition of balanced budgets even after providing more than $10 million of financial aid to our students.

Metaphors such as "ringing the bell" or "tipping the hat" help us communicate in a phrase volumes of feelings, gratitude and respect. We know that the support you gave us followed prior pacesetting achievements in our development program. We also are certain that you realize our need for your continuing support.

Last year three of our athletic teams went to the NCAA playoffs; there were two All-Americans; three of our coaches were named Conference Coach of the Year in their sport; we were ranked in the top 10 nationally in Division III football as we opened the season. Our enrollment reached a record high of 1,242 this fall. We are clearly achieving the balanced excellence to which we aspire. Your support is critical to that success.

Just as our students, faculty, and staff have risen to new heights, as evidenced by our success in athletics, setting new records in enrollment and retention, the recruitment of outstanding scholars on the faculty, our acknowledgment in national media, and the placement of some of our students in outstanding graduate schools, you have helped take us to new heights in development.

As you can imagine, more needs to be done. We will be working very hard in the coming year on supplementing our scholarship program, enhancing faculty development and compensation, and acquiring much needed scientific and academic equipment. We look forward to your continued support of our work here at the College. Again, we tip our hats to you in appreciation for all that you do for Bridgewater College.

NEW Beginnings

2000-01 Year Highlights

When Virginia Supreme Court Justice Donald W. Lemons spoke about “New Beginnings” to Bridgewater College’s 221 graduates of the Class of 2001 on Sunday, May 20, he offered 10 guidelines for preparing for life’s “never-ending series of new beginnings.” One of his tips was to “begin each day by dwelling on two or three things you are thankful for.”

Indeed, Bridgewater College is counting blessings. Faithful alumni and friends continue to support the College each year, helping to sustain the excellent academic and extra-curricular programs we offer to our students. In the following pages, we celebrate many new beginnings for the College during the 2000-2001 academic year. We are grateful for the support of each member of our community.

Record Year in Enrollment

Last fall, Bridgewater College surpassed a decade-long enrollment goal of 1,200 full-time students by the year 2000. With the late arrival Yuejiao Wu of Shenyang Liaoning, China, who studied for a year under the Brethren Colleges Abroad (BCA) program, the College’s enrollment boasted 1,201 full-time students.

With residence halls completely filled, four college-owned, single-family homes on East College Street and two on-campus apartments were converted into honors housing for seniors. Nearly 85 percent of Bridgewater’s students lived on campus last year.

In addition to breaking an overall enrollment record, Bridgewater also welcomed the largest freshman class in its 120-year history – 384 first-time freshmen compared to the previous high of 343 set in 1998. Fifty students transferred to Bridgewater from other colleges.

Carter Center for Worship and Music

In a worship service of music, litanies and meditations, the Carter Center for Worship and Music was dedicated on Sunday, Sept. 24, 2000. The $1.3 million renovation project, completed that summer, transformed the former Bridgewater Church of the Brethren into a classroom, rehearsal and performance facility for the music department.

Renovations of the 27,700-square-foot building included the addition of central air conditioning, handicapped accessibility and faculty and staff offices. The former fellowship hall was converted into a rehearsal room for the Symphonic and Jazz bands, while former Sunday school rooms were soundproofed for use as individual practice rooms. The first-floor sanctuary was not changed and is used for campus worship services and musical performances. The small chapel, named the Stone Prayer Chapel, also has been preserved.

The Carter family, for whom the building was named, began association with the College in the late 1880s, when Daniel Lee Carter and Anna Mary Watts Carter were Bridgewater students. Four of their children attended either Daleville or Bridgewater College, and at least 17 direct descendants are Bridgewater alumni.

Their son, Leonard, was a Bridgewater College trustee from 1941-47. His wife, Gladys Stone Carter, was a generous benefactor of the College until her death in July 2000. The Stone Prayer Chapel is named in memory of her parents, the late Reed L. and Nancy Bassett Stone.

Leonard and Gladys' children, Barbara Carter Stone and L. Clyde Carter Jr., currently serve on the Bridgewater College Board of Trustees.

Multi-Leveled Gratitude

For 25 years, Professor Ralph MacPhail, '65, and his Pinion Players lifted and set up monstrous 4-foot by 8-foot wooden platforms for theatre-in-the-round. Built in the early 1970s for a concert in Nininger Hall, these bulky structures took several days to set up and had to be stored in dangerously high stacks.

Thanks to former Pinion Players and other friends of the theatre program, MacPhail, professor of communication studies, theatre and English, now has lighter, safer and easy-to-store aluminum platforms. The new platforms – with rubber tops and removable legs, and safety railings – stack on a cart, take up less space and are more attractive on stage.

More than 100 friends and alumni have rallied their support of the theatre program, raising over $17,000 for the Pinion Players Platforms Plus Project. Robert Newlen, '75, and Neva Clayton, '73, led this fund-raising effort by writing a letter in November 1999 to former Pinion Players. The donations were sufficient for the platforms, as well as for some adjustable legs to make them more versatile for staging.

The Pinion Players used the newly purchased aluminum platforms in their production of "The Paper Chase" last fall. The platforms, stacked to create different visual levels, were used to designate apartment living rooms and a large hotel room in a complex, multi-location set.

They will be used primarily for converting the Cole Hall stage into an intimate performing area called "theatre-in-the-round." In such an arrangement, the audience sits inches away from the action on chairs arranged on the multi-level platforms. Last year, the structures also were used for the Madrigal Dinner in the Kline Campus Center's dining room and Symphonic Band performances in the Carter Center for Worship and Music.

"What's wonderful about these platforms is that they have such a general-use capability," MacPhail says. "They're an incredibly useful asset, and they make things simpler. They have truly enhanced student performances."

Dramatic production has a rich tradition at Bridgewater College, beginning with class plays that were performed before Mildred B. Hahn, teacher of speech and dramatics, organized the Curtain Club of Bridgewater College in 1937. Since that time, Bridgewater thespians have delighted audiences with several productions each year. Several thousand alumni have participated in the College's dramatic programs.

Newlen says he supported this project because of his fondness for MacPhail and his wife, Alice Hoffman MacPhail, '64, who also has contributed significantly to Bridgewater's theatre program. Their tireless dedication has built a successful drama program at the College, he says.

Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness

Groundbreaking for the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness took place on Wednesday, Aug. 30, 2000. Funkhouser, who has donated more than $4.5 million to the project, participated in the groundbreaking ceremony for the building named in his honor and in memory of his late wife, Virginia, a nurse and an advocate for young people.

Beginning in November 2000, Chester L. Bradfield, president of Good Printers Inc. of Bridgewater, chaired a $3 million effort to provide remainder funds for the construction cost of almost $5 million, equip the 34,000-square-foot building and establish an endowment fund to permanently support the center's operation and maintenance.

Bradfield has been involved in Bridgewater College's annual business campaign, having served as chair in 1984-85 and as a volunteer both before and since that time.

"When I was at BC, Ralph encouraged all students to participate and helped them focus on the areas where they could best contribute," Newlen says. "Ralph and Alice were generous with their time and love, and this meant a great deal to me."

Judy Williams, executive director for development, says alumni who contribute to a specific project are able to assist departments in meeting needs the budget may not cover. More than that, she hopes it strengthens their ties to their alma mater.

"The alumni are the ones who know us the best and love us the most," Williams says. "They have an affinity for the college, and it's important to involve alumni in fund raising."

And now that the Pinion Players have their new platforms, MacPhail hopes to upgrade some of the spotlights in Cole Hall, modernize the makeup room and replace an aging intercom system with wireless technology. Alumni and friends who would like to help with these projects may designate some of their BC giving to the Pinion Players.

"I hope my fellow alumni will reflect on the role Bridgewater has played in their lives and respond generously," Newlen says.

Not Just a Number

Even though it rained on Jessica Hepburn's first visit to Bridgewater College, the senior liberal studies major says she thought the campus was beautiful. She describes rainfall on that day as a sign of forthcoming "showers of blessings."

"When I first came to visit, I thought [Bridgewater] would be so awesome," says the Hancock, Md., native. "I thought, 'It's small, and it's going to be like home.' I came to check it out, and it was a perfect fit."

Separating from her identical twin sister, Monica, who attends Ithaca College in New York, was a difficult adjustment, Hepburn says. Prior to college, they had not been apart for more than three weeks at a time. "We grew up in a small town, so we had been in class together since kindergarten," she says.

Although the separation was painful, the sisters refrained from running up large phone bills. Hepburn coped by making new friends and becoming involved in campus life.

An endowed scholarship recipient, Hepburn is a member of the Lambda Society, Bridgewater's honor society, and past president of the Student Virginia Education Association (SVEA). As a member of SVEA, Hepburn has helped to organize activities such as fund-raising for the Ruritan Club, reading books to disadvantaged children and practicing mock interviews. Despite her busy schedule, Hepburn is pleased that she's managed to keep her grades up while participating in extra-curricular activities.

Another factor that eased the adjustment to college was the "Southern hospitality" she's felt at Bridgewater. "I like the fact that I'm not just a number here," she says. "I can see professors that I just had for a general education course out on the mall, and they'll call me Ms. Hepburn. They remember my name."

Thanks to Hepburn's enthusiasm for a variety of academic subjects, she has had difficulty settling on a particular career goal. As a freshman, Hepburn had plans to become a nutritionist after graduation. She's currently seeking a teaching certificate, but hopes to someday attend law school for a career in educational law.

"I've always wanted to go to law school, but I didn't know if that was something I could do," she says. "But where there's a will, there's a way." If she chooses this path, she hopes to overcome the sometimes negative reputation of the legal profession by applying her Christian values to a future law practice. Whatever she decides, Hepburn wants to help people.

Dr. David McQuilken, her advisor and professor of history and political science, is convinced that Hepburn has what it takes to make her dreams come true. "Jessica has a strong drive and a determination to succeed," he says. "She will push herself to achieve and often goes beyond what is required to accomplish her goals." ■

Committed to Kids

Every once in a while, Steve Teator likes to make people smile. When he gets in the mood to entertain, the senior family and consumer sciences major occasionally dons a clown suit for special classroom projects. For a textiles class, Teator once made a presentation about shower curtains dressed in a female friend's terry bath wrap, with a towel wrapped turban-style on his head.

"I just love to put a smile on people's faces, so I do something different, that's unexpected," says the Canisteo, N.Y., native. "The pros enjoy it."

Dr. Nancy St. John, chair of the family and consumer sciences department, can attest to that. She recalls that once, Teator, who plans to become a teacher, wore his clown wig to her early childhood education class, where students interact with pre-school children. "The children loved it," she says. "And most of the [Bridgewater] students think, 'That's just Steve!'"

A recipient of several endowed scholarships named in honor of Bridgewater alumni and friends, Teator says these scholarships have played "a vital role" in his education at Bridgewater. Though he received assistance from the tuition exchange program during his freshman year, the benefit was not renewable for subsequent years. "Without scholarships, I would not be here," he says. "The donors have benefited my life greatly."

And Teator has made the most of every moment at Bridgewater. As a freshman, Teator admits that he was too ambitious in pursuing extra-curricular activities. Not only was he involved in every religious organization, but he also participated in Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Fellowship of Christian Athletes and five intramural sports. Additionally, he has been a resident counselor and member of the Student Service Board.

A gifted leader, Teator says he learned early in his college career that he could be more effective by paring down his number of commitments.

"I learned the value of not being a mile wide and an inch thick, so I chopped away from my activities and focused on the things that I thought were most important," he says. "Being able to do that makes you more a person of your word because you're able to truly devote yourself to something."

Teator currently serves as president of the Student Virginia Education Association, plays intramurals, and is a member of Campus Crusade for Christ. He also leads a Bible study group in Wright Hall and tutors at South River Elementary School.

In class, St. John has appreciated Teator's leadership qualities and his ability to question the status quo and offer alternative ideas. "Steve has the ability to set goals and find creative and unique ways to reach them," she says. "His greatest strength is his enthusiasm for what he does, what he hopes to accomplish, and enthusiasm for the well-being of his future students."

With hopes of positively affecting children's lives, Teator plans to teach fourth or fifth grade, and he also wants to coach football. He says he enjoys everything about working with kids, "aside from their little attitudes sometimes."

But he admits any grief he gets from his future students will be payback. "I was a trouble-maker when I was a kid," he says, grinning mischievously. ■

New Academic Majors

Two new majors were offered for the first time during the 2000-01 academic year — communication studies and sports medicine. Dr. Jeffrey Pierson, associate professor of communication, chairs the new communication studies department. Also teaching in the department are Ralph MacPhail Jr., professor of communication studies, theatre and English, and Dr. Melanie Laliker, assistant professor of communication studies.

The sports medicine department expects to graduate its first alumni in the spring of 2002. Offered in partnership with Rockingham Memorial Hospital, where students will participate in clinical rotations, the major was developed by Dan Kegerreis, Bridgewater's head athletic trainer and assistant professor of exercise science, and curriculum coordinator Barbara H. Long, also assistant professor of exercise science. Both Kegerreis and Long are certified athletic trainers.

Rankings

Bridgewater College ranked 14th among 131 Southern liberal arts colleges last year in U.S. News & World Report's "America's Best Colleges 2001" issue. This was the second straight year Bridgewater rated among the top Southern liberal arts colleges.

SACS Accreditation

After undergoing two years of intensive self-study, Bridgewater College received re-accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), which has accreditation responsibility for colleges and schools in 11 Southern states from Virginia to Texas. The College has been a SACS member since 1925, and accreditation must be evaluated every 10 years.

Projection 21

Bridgewater College topped its $60 million fund-raising goal by more than $2 million. The campaign, Projection 21: An Adventure in Excellence, ended on Dec. 31, 2000.

The Projection 21 campaign was announced publicly in April 1992 with the receipt of the College's largest single gift — nearly $11 million from the estate of Dr. Robert M. McKinney, a research chemist from Westminster, Md., who served on the College's Board of Trustees from 1957 until his death in January 1992.

Other major gifts came from Fred O. Funkhouser, the retired Harrisonburg, Va., banker from Florida, who is the leading donor to the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness; the late A.D. and Emma Grace Miller of Roanoke; and the late C.D. Lantz and his wife, Vergie Lantz of Broadway. Additionally, more than 6,000 other contributors assured the campaign's success.

Doc Jopson Honored

Dr. Harry G.M. Jopson Day was celebrated on Saturday, April 28, honoring a beloved, long-time professor and coach. The event was scheduled to coincide with the Old Dominion Athletic Conference track and field championships.

Following tributes from some of Jopson's former students, the celebration featured the unveiling of a bust in Jopson's likeness, sculpted by renowned Philadelphia artist Frank Bender. The bust is located in a specially designed brick wall that serves as the entrance to Jopson Field, the athletic complex that was dedicated in his honor in 1971.

"Doc" Jopson joined the Bridgewater faculty in 1936 and was chair of the biology department for the next 45 years. He also coached track and field and cross country until his retirement in 1981. At age 90, he continues to meet with the track and cross country teams almost daily during their competitive seasons.

Athletics Thrived

Bridgewater College athletic teams enjoyed successful seasons in 2000-2001, including the Riding Team, which competed for the first time. Rider Cary Chenoweth completed her freshman year with distinction, winning third place in the intermediate on the flats class at the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association National Horse Show in Conyers, Ga.

Eagles athletic teams gained solid season finishes, with men's and women's basketball teams competing in ODAC semifinals;

the baseball team won the ODAC championship and competed in the NCAA tournament; the volleyball team won the ODAC title and advanced to the NCAA tournament; and the football team advanced to the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Women's basketball coach Jean Willi, who completed her fifth season with the Eagles, was one of three coaches named ODAC Coach of the Year. Baseball coach and athletic director Curt Kendall and head football coach Mike Clark also received the honor.

Two Bridgewater students also were named All-Americans — Kyle Williford, '02, basketball, and Melissa Baker, '01, track. ■

2000-2001 HONOR ROLL OF DONORS

More than 120 years after Bridgewater College's establishment, the College continues to sustain Daniel C. Flory's vision of providing a liberal arts education to men and women in a Christian environment. The College upholds Flory's ideals through the mission statement, which states a desire for Bridgewater to graduate leaders, prepared to live "ethical, healthy, useful and fulfilling lives." Our alumni and friends create the legacy that keeps Bridgewater's spirit strong.

It is with deep gratitude that we recognize the individuals and groups who maintain the tradition of supporting the College. Those whose life-long cumulative giving has reached $50,000 are recognized here, and those who made a gift to Bridgewater in 2000-2001 are named on the following pages.

Gifts to Annual Fund

The generous gifts of many individuals and organizations in 2000-2001 equip Bridgewater to meet the daily academic, physical and social needs of its students. Those people who demonstrated their faith in the College last year, either through Annual Fund contributions, estate-related gifts or grants, are recognized on the following pages with our gratitude and appreciation.

The Annual Fund serves to bridge the gap between tuition dollars and Bridgewater College's operating costs. This is possible due to the financial generosity of our alumni, current parents, parents of alumni, friends, and local businesses.

Many of these supporters give not only their dollars, but also their time. Rick Claybrook, class of '74, served as chairman of the Annual Fund Committee and headed the volunteer's fund-raising efforts during the 2000-2001 Annual Fund Campaign. Overall, more than 250 volunteers assisted in raising over $965,000 for Bridgewater College last year.

The Alumni Campaign saw a nine percent rise in giving and an increased participation rate of 25 percent among graduates. Parent volunteers assisted in encouraging eight percent of the current parents to contribute, and the volunteers' efforts led to a three percent increase in giving among parents of alumni.

Other areas also saw an increase in participation. Sixteen percent of Bridgewater's friends financially supported the College during 2000-2001. Faculty participation rose to 56 percent, and staff support increased to 27 percent, resulting in a combined faculty/staff participation rate of 37 percent.

Bills, Bills, Bills

You may wonder how annual fund donations are used. It's simple: These contributions help pay the bills. Below are some of the College's significant annual operation costs:

ELECTRIC BILLS: $51,000 per month (average)
(This figure excludes the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness.)

PAYING THE FACULTY PER CLASS-DAY: $30,000 +

RECRUITING COST PER FRESHMAN: $2,500
(This figure excludes coaches' recruiting time.)

STAFFING AND SUPPLYING THE LIBRARY:
$530 per student

GROUND MAINTENANCE
requires the purchase of industrial grade equipment because it is so heavily used during peak seasons. A new weed eater: $400; a new push mower: $225; a used riding lawn mower in good condition costs about $10,000, and a new machine costs $15,000-$20,000.

OUTFITTING ONE FOOTBALL PLAYER: $400

The Bridgewater College Alumni Association was organized in 1899 to strengthen the bond of loyalty between the alumni and their alma mater. The group was formed not only to foster effective communication between the College staff and alumni, but also to provide services and events for alumni with the hopes of raising the level of pride and nostalgia.

Alumni volunteers work tirelessly to organize regional alumni activities; extend personal invitations to their classmates for alumni events; offer career networking opportunities to current students; provide leadership for fund-raising efforts; recruit prospective students; and serve on committees that provide input to improve College services. And every August, Eagles We-Haul troopers welcome the freshman class by helping them move into the residence halls.

The Alumni Association currently has more than 13,000 members and comprise the largest group of donors to the College.

Alumni of Affiliated Schools

Many Bridgewater College supporters completed all or part of their high school or college education at schools that later merged with or were affiliated with the College. We are proud to include graduates of these schools as part of our alumni family, and we are thankful for their support.

Bridgewater College receives many gifts from individuals who are not alumni. These friends share affection for the College and are committed to its mission. They include trustees, parents of alumni and current students, faculty and staff, organizations, Church of the Brethren congregations and individuals.

We appreciate their generosity and assistance in sustaining Bridgewater's foundation of excellence.

Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation Inc.

Thanks to a $79,000 grant from the Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation Inc., of Atlanta, Ga., 40 female Bridgewater College students received scholarships during the 2000-2001 academic year. Eleven of the recipients earned degrees in psychology, music, business, history and political science, family and consumer sciences, and allied health science.

The Lettie Pate Whitehead Foundation Inc. is a charitable private foundation dedicated to the support of needy women in nine southern states. Chartered in 1946, the foundation was established through provisions in the will of Mrs. Whitehead's youngest son, Conkey Pate Whitehead. He wanted to honor his mother, a prominent philanthropic businesswoman.

Virginia Department of Education

Bridgewater received a third unsolicited grant award of $80,000 from the Virginia Department of Education (same amount awarded last year) to fund training seminars for para-professional educators (teacher assistants) across the Commonwealth. Rodney Morris, assistant professor of education, was again a leader of this program. The four-seminar series grew out of Bridgewater's Summer Institute for Para-professionals held in 1998, which was partly supported by a special education program grant from Jessie Ball duPont Fund of Jacksonville, Fla.

General Education Curriculum

The Jesse Ball duPont Fund of Jacksonville, Fla., continues to support the College with a two-year $200,000 grant that funds the second phase of the College's revised general education curriculum.

Jesse Ball duPont was an educator and later a philanthropist. When she died in 1970, her will established the Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund to continue her philanthropic work.

SunTrust Bank

SunTrust Bank donated $50,000 in memory of William C. Harris and in honor of Fred O. Funkhouser to support the construction of the Fred O. and Virginia C. Funkhouser Center for Health and Wellness. In making the presentation, SunTrust officials cited both men's affection for the College, as well as Funkhouser's long service as a community banker and Harris' leadership in regional banking.

Funkhouser, who has contributed more than $4.5 million toward the health and wellness center, served for 11 years on the board of United Virginia Bank, which later became Crestar and is now SunTrust.

Harris had joined the Bridgewater College Board of Trustees just one year prior to his death in October 1996. At that time, he was chairman and chief executive officer of Crestar Bank's operations in the Washington-Baltimore area. He worked for Crestar and its predecessors for 33 years.

Many businesses, corporations and foundations demonstrate their belief in Bridgewater College and its mission through their contributions. Their support strengthens the work of the College and enhances the education and lives of its students. Identified here are the businesses and foundations that supported Bridgewater's educational programs in 2000-2001.

Throughout its history, Bridgewater College has been sustained by hundreds of forward-thinking alumni and friends who have provided financial gifts through estate planning. Through gifts of scholarships, endowments, bequests and other types of estate-related contributions, these individuals establish legacies that strengthen the College and benefit future generations of students.

Bridgewater strives to provide financial and estate planning services for alumni and friends of the College, assisting them in meeting their personal and family financial objectives while establishing support for the College. It is through these generous donations that the school is able to build educational programs, undertake capital projects and enhance the value of each student's educational investment.

Life Income Plans

As of the end of the fiscal year 2000-2001, life income plans, including unitrusts and gift annuities, have been established with the College as beneficiary amounting to $15,170,414.

These arrangements assure donors of substantial lifetime earnings and their gifts ultimately will be used to strengthen the College.
